POULTRY SHOW A BIG SURPRISE

Visitors to Poultry Show at Biglerville Surprised at High Standard of Exhibits. Winners Announced in Apple Competition.

Adams County's poultry and apple show at Biglerville, visited daily by hundreds of people, is regarded with delight by all and surprise by many who have had no idea of the fancy chickens, turkeys, ducks and pigeons raised on the various county farms. The apple exhibit is one which could be safely put against any in the country.

The Batterman building in Biglerville is the scene of this combined display. In the one part of the building, near the entrance, the beautiful products of Adams County orchards have been attractively arranged on plates and in boxes while the main section of the factory is devoted to the display of poultry.

In substantial coops the more than eight hundred birds are arranged in long aisles through which a crowd of interested spectators is almost constantly wandering and inspecting with delight the chickens, ducks and other fowls. From the little Golden Seabrights to the large Orpingtons, Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks almost every variety of chicken raised in this section is on display, and the birds are of the finest.

To the town man the display is a revelation for the chickens are such as might be found at an exhibit held by people who made fancy poultry raising a specialty. From the appearance of the Biglerville show one might prophesy with some degree of certainty that the county will, before long, get almost as much fame for the fancy chickens of its farms as it enjoys for the numerous fancy apples grown in its orchards.

But the chickens are not the only part of the poultry show. Ducks of many different kinds are on exhibition. Indian Runner ducks have the call, it seems, and numerous specimens of these pretty fowls are in the various coops. Handsome bronze turkeys strut about their quarters as though the balance of the show were really beneath their notice and they were the only thing worth looking at. And then come the pigeons. Pretty, and of all sizes and kinds, the dainty little birds are the special delight of the many women and children who are visiting the show and they come in for their full share of attention. Here too, the fine quality of the product is a matter for surprise and delight to the visitor.

NOTES OF THE SHOW
Members of the association conducting the show are unanimous in giving the credit for its complete success to Oscar C. Rice who has been laboring for many months to bring the plans to completion. As one member remarked "He has been working from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. to make this thing a 'go' and he deserves the credit."

"Did you ever hear a noisier bunch of fowls in your life" one spectator was heard to observe when the chorus of crowing, gobbling, and quacking was at its height. "Yes," answered another, "All that is needed to make it a full fledged choral society is a flock of guineas."

Biglerville is now looking toward larger things for next year. U. S. Klinefelter will erect an apple barrel factory during the spring 130 x 60 feet in which the next show will be held. The present building is only 50 x 60 feet and the quarters are rather cramped, especially during the hours when visitors are the most numerous. "This is good stuff," Mr. Rothwell, Martinsburg, the apple judge and an extensive fruit grower, was overheard to say as he was going over a number of plates of fancy Adams County fruit. Mr. Rothwell expressed keen pleasure in the fruit display and judged the apples with great care and precision.

The substantial coops in which the fowls are spending the several days of the exhibition were the subject of much favorable comment. The coops were built by members of the association and local helpers, many of whom gave hours of work free of charge to make the exhibition a success. The birds seem to be right proud of their quarters and really act as though they take considerable pleasure in being viewed.

The show is being visited daily by many from Gettysburg and a great distance and general satisfaction is expressed by all.
The farmers' institute held in Thomas Brothers' Hall Monday and today is an added attraction and is well attended by the people of Biglerville and vicinity, a decided contrast to the reception given the lecturers here last week.

NEW BOROUGH TAX COLLECTOR

Harry E. Bumbaugh Named to Fill Position Made Vacant by the Death of Peter Culp, Other Business of County Court.

Harry E. Bumbaugh was on Monday appointed tax collector for the borough of Gettysburg to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Peter Culp. There were three applicants for the position, William H. Sharetts, Jesse Snyder and Mr. Bumbaugh. All three presented largely signed petitions, Mr. Sharetts having a paper signed by well on to 500 names.

In making the appointment the Court stated that it was the choice of the two associates who took into account Mr. Bumbaugh's former application at the time William H. Frock resigned from office. Judge Swope stated that he favored Mr. Sharetts owing to his largely signed petition. The two votes of the associates, however, carried and Mr. Bumbaugh received the appointment.

Rauen heard his fate coolly.

DESERVES SUCCESS

A notable feature of Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse" which the United Play Company brings to the Wizard Theatre on Thursday night is the wholesome and distinct drawing of the various characters in the story. There cannot be found in the play a villain, a frivolous matron, a wayward girl, nor an adventuress. Nowadays it is a rare occurrence to visit the theatre without having to hear the doings and misdoings of one or more such characters on the stage. The cleanliness of "The Lion and the Mouse" has been a huge factor in the remarkable success enjoyed by this interesting and well told story of certain phases of America's money world.—advertisement.

RAILROADS OFFER NEW WAGE SCALE

Committee Willing to Submit Firemen Question Further.

MINIMUM RATE IS FIXED

New Scale Materially Increases Wages on Some Roads, While Others Are Not Affected.

New York, Jan. 7.—Compromise in wages, affecting nearly all the roads and a proposal to submit to a committee the question of two firemen on certain types of locomotives, are proposed by the conference committee representing fifty eastern railroads in their reply submitted to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

A minimum and maximum rate of pay for all firemen is established, and while it materially increases wages on some of the roads other roads now paying high rates are not affected. In brief the proposal is somewhat similar to the award of the arbitration board in the engineers' wage controversy.

How much the increases would amount to in the aggregate could not be computed off-hand from the schedules in the statement. Ten hours or less, or 100 miles or less, is to constitute a day's work except when otherwise specified.

The time of the firemen of all classes is to begin when they report for duty and to end when their engines are in place at terminal points. Provided the new schedules are ratified by the firemen they are to be effective "when all other matters are agreed upon."

Among their demands the firemen asked for locomotives weighing less than 80,000 pounds $2.55 per 100 miles or set working day and $2.90 on the through freight service. The scale varies up to locomotives weighing less than 140,000 pounds, when $2.85 and $3.20 for passenger and freight service respectively is stipulated.

To this proposition the railroads are willing to pay $2.40 per 100 miles on passenger locomotives weighing less than 140,000 pounds and $2.75 on the through freight locomotives weighing 140,000 pounds or less.

The railroads are willing to pay as follows: For locomotives in passenger service weighing between 140,000 and 175,000 pounds, 10 cents per 100 miles to be added to the present rates. For passenger locomotives weighing 175,000 pounds and over, 15 cents to be added to the present rates, with a maximum of $2.70 per 100 miles. For freight locomotives weighing between 140,000 and 175,000 pounds, 10 cents per 100 miles to be added to present rates, the maximum of $3. For freight locomotives weighing 175,000 pounds and over, 15 cents per 100 miles to be added to present rates, with a maximum of $3.25.

Electric locomotive firemen asked for from $2.80 to $3.25 per day, according to the class of service, whereas the railroads are willing to pay but from $2.40 to $2.75 per day for the various classes of service.

CASTRO OBTAINS WRIT

Takes Personal Charge of Fight For Admission Into United States.

New York, Jan. 7.—Cipriano Castro took personal charge of his fight against deportation.

He called a lawyer to his room where he is detained at Ellis Island and prepared a new petition asking for a superseding writ of habeas corpus. Later this writ was granted by Judge Holt in the federal district court.

The new writ is more specific than the original document sworn out on his behalf last Friday. Castro believes that it will require a more detailed answer from the immigration authorities. Like the original writ, it is returnable Jan. 10.

UNION PACIFIC PLAN REJECTED BY COURT

Rules Proposal Would Not Meet Dissolution Decree.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The supreme court of the United States held that the plan advanced by Union Pacific attorneys of the disposition of the entire stockholding of the Union Pacific Railroad company in the Southern Pacific Railroad company by transfer to the stockholders of the Union Pacific company would not so effectively end the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger as to comply with its dissolution decree.

The original decree of the supreme court was made Dec. 1 last, and the Union Pacific was held to have violated the Sherman anti-trust law in obtaining control of the Southern Pacific, inasmuch as they were in part competing lines. A dissolution of the merger was ordered.

Immediately there arose a controversy as to the manner of distributing the stock held illegally by the Union Pacific. Union Pacific attorneys claimed for the Union Pacific stockholders the exclusive privilege of taking over the $125,650,000 worth of Southern Pacific stock held.

Attorney General Wickersham opposed any plan that gave the Union Pacific stockholders an exclusive privilege of buying the Southern Pacific stock in question. He was willing to approve a plan for the Union Pacific stockholders to share in the distribution with the Southern Pacific stockholders other than the Union Pacific Railroad company.

CORNER VIOLATES SHERMAN LAW

Indictment of Patton in Cotton Deal Declared Valid.

MUST NOW FACE TRIAL

United States Supreme Court Says Down Principle Affecting Speculation in Interstate Commodities.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The supreme court of the United States laid down the far reaching principle that "corner" of interstate commodities, such as articles of clothing and food, are in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and held that, as far as the Sherman act was concerned, the indictment in the New York federal court of James A. Patton, Eugene G. Searles, Frank H. Hayne and William P. Brown for "conspiring to run an alleged cotton corner" was valid. The case against them was sent back for trial on other proceedings.

Justice Vandevanter announced the opinion of the court. Justice Lurton delivered a dissenting opinion, in which Chief Justice White and Justice Holmes concurred.

The majority of the court held that the circuit court for southern New York had decided that the indictment charged a "withholding" of the cotton from the market, a necessary element of a corner as admitted by the government.

The minority held that the circuit court found the indictment did not so charge and for that reason the indictment was faulty.

According to all the justices the correctness of the holding of the circuit court as to the indictment charging a "withholding," and as to the sufficiency of the indictment on other technical points had to be accepted at this time without question by the supreme court.

The points thus left undecided may be made the basis for bringing the case to the court again, if the defendants are convicted upon trial.

Solicitor General Bullitt, who presented the government's side of the case, issued a statement after the decision in which he said that at last a way had been found to stop the running up of prices by men who sought to corner the market, not only of cotton, but wheat, corn, lard and other commodities.

In his opinion, Justice Vandevanter dealt at length with the defense that the accused men were not engaged in interstate commerce.

"The first section of the act, upon which the counts are founded," said he, "is not confined to voluntary restraint, as where persons engaged in interstate trade or commerce agree to suppress competition among themselves, but includes as well involuntary restraint, as where persons not so engaged conspire to compel action by others, or to create artificial conditions, which necessarily impede or burden the due course of such trade or commerce or restrict the common liberty to engage therein."

The Standard Oil case was quoted in support of this doctrine. Government officials declare that this language will materially strengthen their fight against combinations violating the law.

ARCHBOLD TESTIFIES

Judge Denies Improper Motives in Refuse Bank Deal.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Friendship for his Scranton associates with whom he had lived and worked for years was the motive that led Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the United States commerce court, to negotiate with officials of the Erie and Lehigh Valley railroads over the settlement of coal land matters, and that induced him to endorse certain notes, according to the statements made by the accused jurist when he took the stand before the impeachment court of the senate to testify in his own behalf.

Judge Archbald followed his wife upon the witness stand. Led by his own attorneys, he gave a chronological history of the transactions upon which the house of representatives had based its impeachment proceedings against him. He repeatedly denied that any improper motives influenced his actions, or that he had sought corruptly to use his power as a federal judge to induce the railroad officials to do certain things.

FOR FEDERAL CONTROL OF ALL CORPORATIONS

Bill in the Senate For Industrial Commission.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Senator Bristow, Progressive, of Kansas, introduced a bill for an industrial commission of seven members to take over the work of the bureau of corporations and exercise control over all persons, firms or corporations doing an interstate business with gross receipts of more than $5,000,000 a year.

The bill, he said, proposed to create a body similar to the interstate commerce commission, to have the same power over industrial concerns that the latter exercises over transportation companies. It is in line with the platform pledges of the Progressive party.

"The purpose is," he declared, "to protect the people with some degree of promptness from the extortionate practices of powerful corporations without destroying the businesses they represent."

He asserted that the commission would not "interfere with big business operations, if such operations are along honest and creditable lines," and contended that the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases had demonstrated that the courts were ineffective for the supervision of "big business."

The commission would have power to investigate the financial condition, business operations and management of all big interstate concerns.

FROST IN CALIFORNIA

Try to Save Citrus and Oranges by Smoke From Smudge Pots.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 6.—Dense fogs of smoke from the smudge pots in orange groves overspread the citrus region of southern California in an effort to prevent damage from the coldest weather in this vicinity for years.

Ice has formed everywhere and the weather bureau reported "killing" frost in foothills where orange growers for years have known no dangerous temperatures.

At Riverside, in the heart of the orange belt, it was estimated that 90 per cent of the oranges would be a total loss.

FIRECRACKERS TIED TO PIGEON CAUSED FIRE

Bird Alighted in Haymow, Which Was Soon Ablaze.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 7.—Thorough investigation of the reported attempt of incendiaries to compel the Reading's big Otto colliery at Branchdale to shut down by burning the large stables, has revealed the fact that the destruction was due to a pigeon.

The bird was part of a consignment for a shooting match. One of the handlers, in order to make it too active for the opposing gunner, tied a pack of firecrackers to its feet.

The pigeon got safely away and flew to the stables, with part of the burning crackers still attached to it. When the bird alighted in the haymow the hay was ignited, causing a loss of $6000.

PEACE ENVOYS IN DEADLOCK

Conference Suspended as Turks Will Not Yield.

NO DATE FOR RESUMPTION

The Turkish Delegates Offered Further Concessions, But Refused to Give Up Adrianople.

London, Jan. 7.—At the peace conference between the delegates of the Balkan states and Turkey, the Turkish envoys offered to make further concessions, which were considered by the Balkan plenipotentiaries in order to prevent the threatened rupture of the negotiations.

The peace negotiations will be resumed, but the date of the next meeting was not fixed. The official report of the meeting says:

"Having examined the new proposals, the Turkish delegates made a reply to the declaration of the allies. The latter declared the work of the conference suspended."

The Ottoman delegation presented a long statement in which they pointed out the importance of the subject of settlement, but they offered no important concessions. They remained adamant upon the subject of Adrianople.

The delegates of the allies then adjourned to consider the Turkish offer and upon returning presented a counter statement, adding that the Turks had not met their terms. They must ask an adjournment without date. The delegates subsequently emphasized the statement that the negotiations had not been broken off.

By "suspending" the sitting of the peace conference the delegates of the allies assert they have left the move to the Turks. Rehad Pasch, they said, has the alternative of presenting fresh proposals which will follow closely the demands of the Balkan League and thus resuming the conferences, or of adhering to the Turkish claim for the retention of the fortress of Adrianople and restarting further negotiations.

The conversations between Dr. S. Danef, chief of the Bulgarian peace-delegation, and M. Jonsescu, the Roumanian minister of the interior, have assumed a rather serious character. The Roumanian statesman insists that Roumania must receive immediate satisfaction by the grant of compensation promised in return for her neutrality during the war.

Dr. S. Danef in reply repeated the vague promises already made by him to the Roumanian government, but M. Jonsescu insisted on an explicit answer and Dr. Danef thereupon telegraphed to the Bulgarian government at Sofia for definite instructions on the subject.

The Turkish delegates are indignant over the attitude of the European powers. They say that when the Turks are defeated nothing is done to moderate their enemies' pretensions, but when the Turks are victorious they are always prevented by the powers from reaping the fruits. They cite the war of 1897, in which Greece was utterly defeated by Turkey at Domkos. A collective note was sent by the European powers to the Porte, in which the conditions of peace were practically drafted and the annexation of Thessaly was prevented, although occupied by Turkish troops. The payment by Greece of a war indemnity was also stopped by the powers.

Explosion in Stove Hurls Missile That Doffs Headgear.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 7.—Dynamite which had been dropped in coal by a careless miner played a queer trick when Mrs. Morgan Wallaskie, of Minersville, dumped it on a fire in her stove.

The resulting explosion sent a plate of the stove flying through a window, knocking the hat off the head of a man on the street, and who escaped being seriously injured by the fact that he was under the average in height. Similar explosions occurred on Friday in Pottsville and Schuylkill Haven.

A COMICAL LAWSUIT.

Odd Revenge of the Whimsical Count de Lauraguais.

The Count de Lauraguais was one of the most singular characters of a whimsical time. He was full of oddities and had a reckless spirit of daring. The boldness of his language and action once drew upon him the displeasure of Louis XVI., who banished him from Paris, but he came back on a festival day and was seen in the very face of the court walking about a race course. The king winked at the escapade. Such a culprit was incorrigible.

But one of the most absurd of his antics had to do with the Prince D., a very dull courtier, against whom he has a grudge. One day the count applied very gravely to a physician, asking if it were possible for a person to die of ennui.

"Such a thing," said the doctor, "would be very singular and very rare."

"But what I want to know," said the count, "is would it be possible."

"Well," answered the doctor, "a long continued state of ennui might induce some disease, such as consumption, and in that sense it might cause the patient's death."

On this the consultation was written down and signed at the count's request and the fee paid.

Next he went to an advocate and asked whether he could make a legal complaint against a man who by any means whatsoever had formed a design against his life. The advocate assured him that there was not the least doubt of it and in his turn signed a declaration. Armed with these documents, the Count de Lauraguais instituted criminal proceedings against Prince D., who, he declared, had formed the design of tiring him to death!

Of course the suit ended in laughter, but he had had the satisfaction of enraging his enemy.

Beat Her to It.

The lovely girl, having lingered a minute in her room to adjust her transformation, change the angle of her Grecian band and make sure that her skirt fitted like the peeling of a plum descended to the parlor to find the family all assembled and the pet of the household ensconced upon the knee of the young man called her curly head nestled comfortably against his shoulder.

"Why, Mabel!" the young lady exclaimed. "Aren't you ashamed of your self? Get right down."

"Shan't do it," retorted the child. "I got here first."—Everybody's.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Blackie's Plight.

The day was fine, and Mrs. Pig Came grunting round the stack, And with her came her babies ten, Nine white ones and a black.

"Now, children, keep your noses down And follow me about; Then if some titbits lie around You're sure to sniff them out."

The white ones promised to be good And do as they were bid, But Blackie shook his curly tail And ran away and hid.

"Whatever is the good," said he, "Of walking in a row? It's just as bad as that old sty. I'll have some fun, I know."

And so he trotted round the yard, His nose up in the air, To see the many wondrous things That were assembled there.

But soon there was a dreadful splash And then a dismal scream, For Blackie's head was held so high He never saw the stream.

His mother, who was not far off, Came running at the sound, And when she saw poor Blackie's plight She thought he would be drowned.

Oh, how she squealed until at last She brought the farmer's men, Who with a lengthy wooden rake Flashed Blackie out again.

But Blackie was a wiser pig, And from that very day He always did as he was bid Nor wandered far away.

Your Fingers.

Doubtless you feel sure you know where your fingers are and certain that they will mind you when you want them to move. But if you try this experiment you will get all mixed up and won't know which finger is which.

First cross your arms in your lap with the palms of your hands facing each other, fingers spread. Then clasp fingers together, bring them toward you and turn them around so that you could put your little finger in your mouth. (That's not a part of the experiment. It is merely to explain how you have to hold your hands.)

Now look at your fingers and decide which one you want to move, or else get some one else to choose one, and you will probably find when you try to move it that you are moving a different finger from the one you wanted to move. The person who chooses must not touch the finger, but only point to it, or you will be able to feel which one you ought to move.

After you have tried the trick yourself go and try it on some one else.
